FALL 2025

Vintage 2025: It's A Wrap!

Hi everyone,
Well, harvest 2025 is done, and boy, it takes a family. We were fortunate to finish all of our picking before the big rain kicked in, and loved having two of our grandsons, Trace and Gary, helping out. The wines are just now finishing fermentation and should be in barrel soon. Jeff, Tom and I are very pleased with the fruit this year and it is tasting awesome, with good acidity and balanced flavors.

IN THE CELLAR

Before the craziness of crush began, we received our new French oak barrels for the 2025 vintage that Jeff helped us select. This year, it's Fleur de Quintessence, Taransaud, Sylvain, Radoux and LeGrand barrels. And on September 3, we bottled our 2023 red wines—including the Lt. Colonel Robinson, a limited-edition Cabernet Sauvignon produced in honor of our founder/my father. We produced only 52 cases, which we will offer to our wine club first, then to our mailing list. So watch your inbox in January.

IN THE VINEYARD AND AROUND THE RANCH

Last winter brought lots of rain, so the vines produced a bumper crop of fruit this year. Under Jeff's guidance, we thinned the vines, dropping some of the fruit. It meant a smaller crop, but by allowing the vine to focus its energy on fewer clusters, the remaining fruit developed more concentrated flavors and phenolic ripeness. We also planted some new vines of Cabernet Sauvignon and T-budded over some Malbec to Petit Verdot. We've added honey bees to the property this year, and grew quite a variety of pumpkins and sunflowers this season: perfect backdrop for a photo with a few of the great-grandkids.

Wishing you and yours a wonderful fall, and hope to see you here soon!

WHEN WE'RE NOT MAKING WINE...

On October 18, we hosted 140 guests at our annual Wine Club Pizza Party. It was a gorgeous fall Saturday, and we had club members from as far as Illinois, Texas and Nebraska join us for an afternoon of pizza from the wood burning pizza oven, salads and cookies, all enjoyed with some special wines. It was a perfect way to celebrate the end of harvest.

To our Florida friends: we will be participating in the Taste Napa Valley – South Florida & Artisans of Wine + Food at the Boca Raton Resort & Club on January 15 – 18. Please be sure to stop by, say hello and try some of our new releases!

From all of us, thank you for supporting our family business!
